

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Broadcasting like the above documentary only serves the current administration - is Sinclair Broadcasting beholden to them, I wonder?

We, the people know what's going on here - power is being taken out of our hands and given to a small group of radical special interests.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
